MORE HERE THAN NEEDED

Nine Excused with Pay until Next
Let Have to Go. Some Tears Shed here.

Adams County's first contingent of men for the great National Army left Gettysburg this morning. One hundred and twenty of the county's most stalwart youths, perfect physically and most of them eager for the adventure, marched from the Court House to the Western Maryland station, headed by the Fourth U. S. Infantry Band. The streets were lined with people and applause and cheers greeted them all along the line.

At the station hundreds had gathered. They packed the roadway almost to the center, leaving but a narrow lane for the men to pass through and several of the boys were grasped in a final embrace by mothers and sisters before they boarded the train which rolled in just as the column reached the depot. Many, indeed, were the moist eyes in the crowd and those who showed feeling were not women alone, but many men, fathers and brothers of the boys, also wiped away their tears.

The youths themselves were gay and happy. One or two who were taking final leave of members of their families were a bit moved but, as a general rule, they were all in high spirits, grasped the hands of their friends with a gay "So long", and got in return a hearty "Goodbye and good luck".

The train remained at the station possibly a quarter of an hour and during this time the band played patriotic airs. Just as the cars started to move they broke forth with the stirring "National Emblem" while hats and hands were waved and cheers sent Adams County's first contingent on its way.

Reported Here Wednesday

Of the 140 boys called to leave this morning for Camp Meade, all but eleven presented themselves promptly on scheduled time at the offices of the Local Exemption Board in the Court House Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock. Several of the missing eleven are already in the United States Army, others lived at too great distance to get here in time after the notices were received, and others for equally good reasons were not able to be here on schedule.

In the number were some men who had left good positions. At least one had been receiving a salary as high as $110 a month when he was called. Another had to lay down his books in one of the county schools and respond to the summons. Others had been helping with fall farm work. Another left the Pennsylvania Railroad where he had been employed as a chemist. The majority were men of intelligence and character—an outfit of which Adams County can be proud.

Most of them reported unhappy scenes as they were about to leave their homes during the afternoon. Almost all told of their mothers either crying bitterly or with difficulty keeping back insistent tears. Sisters were almost equally demonstrative, and boy after boy told of the sadness in the homes over their leaving. The youths themselves, however, did not look upon their going so seriously and spoke freely of the time when they would come back.

Thirty nine of the 129 said that they would remain in Gettysburg over the night and accommodations were provided for them at the City Hotel. The remainder went to their homes, after being given tags for themselves and their parcels, and receiving instructions to report at seven o'clock this morning.

On Hand Early To-Day

At the Court House to-day the boys started to gather long before the time appointed, and the Court Room was soon occupied by the 129. After the roll had been called,

Sheriff Hartman announced that a message from the State Exemption Board, received late Wednesday night, told that only 120 could be taken now, due to railroad arrangements not being sufficient to provide for more. He asked for nine volunteers who would agree to stay home until called again. There was no trouble getting these nine. They are liable to call any day and their pay will date from yesterday when they appeared and offered themselves for service.

There was a great deal of last-minute detail work to be accomplished and it was eight o'clock before they were ready to go. John W. Hartman, of Gettysburg, and Wilbur Rebert, of Union township, two of the draftees, were put in charge of the party to remain in this capacity until the entire contingent was turned over later in the day to the military authorities at Camp Meade.

The Fourth Regiment Band was waiting at the front of the Court House as the long line marched down the steps and into Baltimore street. The line was quickly formed "two-by-two" and the march to the station commenced. As soon as it started the applause commenced and the boys were happily greeted all the way.

As the train rolled in, Alvey Gantz, one of the first men called, stepped from a car, grabbed Sheriff Hartman and said, "Here I am. I want to go." He was told it was too late and showed the most bitter disappointment.

"No sir, I'm ready and I'm going if I can", he declared, but it was no use.

Gantz lived at Rouzerville, got his notice at five o'clock this morning, hired a man to haul him to Fairfield Station and came down on the train, but the list of 120 had been made up and he will have to wait until the next contingent leaves.

Both New Oxford and McSherrytown asked permission of the Local Board for their boys to board the train at New Oxford and Hanover, but rules prevented this and all had to come to Gettysburg.

Before the Oxford boys left for here Wednesday afternoon the Red Cross of that town presented each with a comfort kit, containing useful articles. A brief but impressive

ATHLETICS WILL PLAY GAME HERE

Eddie Plank's Old Team to Meet
Crack Nine of Seventh Infantry.

Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics will come to Gettysburg on Monday, October first, and play a game of base ball with the crack Seventh Infantry team. This is announced by those in charge of the management of the fast outfit which supplied some of the best men who represented Gettysburg during the closing days of the recent Blue Ridge season. Lefty Baker has since joined the Seventh and may pitch part of the game.

The event will be staged on Nixon Field and an admission will be charged, the amount to be announced later. The proceeds will be devoted to the Army Relief Fund, which provides for the comfort and maintenance of soldiers' widows and children, those of both officers and enlisted men. The game and the cause will doubtless insure large attendance.

It will be the first time that the Athletics have played in the home town of Eddie Plank who for many years was the mainstay of their pitching staff. Eddie will be at the game and may have some little part in it. It has been suggested that he umpire the contest.

All these arrangements, however, will be made later and ample notice of the time of starting, price of admission, and so on, will be given.

SOLDIERS' MEET GREAT SUCCESS

Great Parade with Six Bands Preceded Athletic Day of Khaki-Clad Men.

COMPETITION WAS KEEN

Two Regiment Neck and Neck in Race until Final Events Decided Match. Bally Mules in Action.

Gettysburg had its first chance to see all its soldier guests on Wednesday afternoon when the much heralded athletic meet was staged on Nixon Field. Three-fourths of the 12,000 boys in camp here appeared in the parade, many took part in the contests, and comparatively few failed to take advantage of the half-holiday granted by the authorities. And it was an inspiring sight.

The parade, which preceded the contest, was in itself an event worth while. Each one of the six regiments was led by its band and the long column took many minutes to pass. Stirring martial music and popular march airs marked the progress of the soldiers through town to Nixon Field and specially striking was the appearance of the outfit as they paraded onto the grounds. They marched around the track there until each regiment had reached its appointed station, all took their places, and then some freedom was given.

But the ropes and a heavy cordon of guards assured the most perfect policing arrangements throughout the afternoon. The thousands of soldiers found that they had ample room to see everything and enjoy the day's sports, while the officers and specially invited guests filled the grandstand and bleachers. Every detail had been carefully worked out by the Army Y. M. C. A. and inter-regimental athletic committee who staged the event and it was an unqualified success throughout.

For more than three hours the contests continued, with running races, hurdling, field events, relay races, and the other usual contests all well fought. The regiments cheered their representatives lustily and the athletes got all sorts of encouragement. As the meet progressed it was seen that the victory would fall to either the Seventh or the Fifty Ninth and each point was watched closely.

It finally closed with the Fifty Ninth having 32 points, and the Seventh 30, but the balky mule race must be run over and might cause a change in the standing. No decision was given in that.

The mules gave all sorts of trouble to their riders and just as much amusement to the spectators. Several of the animals did not have to be told to balk but showed that they were fully able to take care of that side of their nature themselves. Some bareback riding on bucking horses also proved a pleasant diversion from the more or less set type of field contests.

The equipment race also won favor with the spectators. In this the contestants, garbed in only a few articles of clothing, had to run, dress, put up a full pack for heavy marching order, strap it on their backs, and run back to the place of starting. Interest was great throughout this performance, and the winner was roundly applauded as he trotted over the line.

Steele and Waltz proved to be the stars of the meet, each scoring ten points. The prize for this accomplishment was won by Steele on the flip of a coin.

The scores made by the various regimental teams were as follows: Fourth, 8; Seventh, 30; Fifty Eighth, 19; Fifty Ninth, 32; Sixtieth, 18; Sixty First, 6; Provisional Battalion, 4. The summary with prizes:

Results of the Contests
100 yard dash: first, $5 Stetson hat and $5 raincoat, Eckert's Store; second, camera and films, John Mumper; third, pennant, J. B. Wineman.
First, Steele 7th; second, Gordon 59th; third, Jordan 58th. Time 10 4-5.

TO-NIGHT'S PROGRAM

Busy Evening for Soldiers and Civilians is Arranged.

This evening the following affairs are planned primarily for the entertainment of soldiers but civilians will be welcomed also:

Concert at Khaki Club by Steven's Male Chorus, of Harrisburg.

Social in recreation rooms of St. James Lutheran church.

Open air concert on Gettysburg Academy steps by York Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. Glee Clubs, numbering eighty people.

Basket Ball, Xavier Hall.

It will be noted that no band concert is listed. This is due to the fact that the Fourth Infantry Band came to town this morning to play for the National Army men, and because a concert to-night would interfere with the event at the Academy.

DENY CHARGES

Say Criticism is Unwarranted and Unjustified by Facts.

(By Telegraph)

Harrisburg, Sept. 20.—Colonel J. Warner Hutchins and William J. Murdock, who have been actively in charge of State Registration Department matters all summer, issued a formal statement to-day denying the charges brought against the methods used, principally the accusations of Dr. Willits, secretary of District Exemption Board No. 1, of Philadelphia. The statement says that the State authorities have simply carried out the orders of Provost General Marshal Crowder and that criticism of the State Board is unfair and unjust.

W. C. T. U. ELECTS

President and Delegate Chosen by this Organization.

At a well attended meeting of the St. Courageous W. C. T. U. held Wednesday evening, Mrs. Kreider was unanimously elected as president to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of the former president, Mrs. F. E. Taylor, who was compelled to resign on account of ill health.

At the same time Mrs. J. Charles Knox was chosen to represent the Union at the State Convention to be held at Greensburg, October 4 to 8.

AGAIN ANNOUNCED

Expect to Have Half Holiday Event at York Springs.

The big picnic and racing matinee will be held at York Springs, Saturday. The base ball game with Churchtown will begin at 1:00 o'clock. A good band will occupy the bandstand in the quarter-stretch and the colored minstrels are sure to be present. The unfinished races from August 11th, will be completed and then an entirely new schedule will be made for the racing card.

PRIMARIES HERE GET SMALL VOTE

Burgess Eicholtz is Choice of Both Democrats and Republicans here.

LIGHT VOTE IN COUNTY

Some New Names Appear in List of Council Aspirants. Results of Poor Directors' Contest.

Comparatively little interest was taken in Gettysburg Wednesday in the fall primaries and one of the lightest votes in years was cast.

A similar lack of interest was manifested in the county. The Democrats nominated for director of the poor P. P. Eisenhart, A. J. Guise, and Simon P. Miller. One is to be elected, L. L. Lerew, of Latimore, is the Republican nominee.

For jury commissioner the Democrats nominated John McIntire, of Straban township, and Harry Whitcomb, of Huntington township; and the Republicans named G. R. Haverstock, of Menallen township.

Both Democrats and Republicans showed their approval of the present administration of borough matters by uniting in nominating James W. Eicholtz to succeed himself as burgess.

For tax collector the present incumbent, H. E. Bumbaugh, will be opposed by William J. Eden. The nominees for the office of borough auditor are: Democratic, C. Edward Swisher and Paul A. Martin; Republican, Robert Blocher and David Kendeheart. For high constable C. A. Fox is the Democratic candidate and John C. Shealer the Republican. A. B. Plank and C. R. Rupp are the nominees for school director; and J. L. Hill Esq. and J. A. Applor for justice of the peace.

The results in the borough wards are as follows:

1st Ward, Democratic

Burgess: J. W. Eicholtz, 33; tax collector: H. E. Bumbaugh, 49; auditor: Edward Swisher, 9; Paul A. Martin, 12; justice of the peace: Jacob A. Appler, 42; high constable: C. A. Fox, 16; school director: A. B. Plank, 19; town council: C. B. Dougherty, 16; R. P. Funkhouser, 13; assessor: E. J. Plank, 40; judge of election: E. J. Settle, 45; inspector: Nicholas Redding, 45.

GEN. STEWART'S WILL

Veteran's Will Makes Bequests to Relatives and Masons.

Adjutant General Thomas J. Stewart died, possessed of an estate valued at "$50,000 and upward", according to the statement filed by his executor, William H. Stewart, his brother, and the Penn Trust Company, in having his will probated.

Directing that his body be placed in the community mausoleum in the Norristown cemetery, his will also provides that his sisters, Margaret Emma Stewart and Mrs. Mary J. Vadakin, receive $5000 each; his brother, William H. Stewart, $2500, and his step-daughter, Mrs. Sharpless Bailey, of Philadelphia, $5000. His sisters are also given the income of $20,000 each; his brother, William, is to get the income of $15,000, and another brother, James, the income of $10,000.

As each die their portion is to be shared by the survivors. When all are dead the principal is to go to the Grand Lodge of Masons of Pennsylvania for the erecting of a Masonic home at Elizabethtown, two or more cottages, as the committee may determine.

Zook Post 11, G. A. R., of Norristown, is bequeathed $500 to be used for extending relief to members.

THREE TO SERVE

Two Sons Enlist; Third Called for his Examination.

Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Nicoll, of New Chester, gave their second son to the colors when David Nicoll enlisted in the navy, as a musician. Last year Mr. Nicoll taught the Pines School. He is now in training at Norfolk, Va. The first son to enlist was James Nicoll, who also chose the navy. A third son, Donald, of Hanover, has been called by the draft, and may have to leave soon. Mr. and Mrs. Nicoll may justly feel proud of their boys.

HAD MONEY TAKEN

While William M. Musser was spending Wednesday in Hanover, he had the misfortune of losing his purse containing over $71.00. He thinks it was taken from him while he was in the crowd at the depot.

WOULD SELL PART OF TROLLEY LINE

Owners of Road to Caledonia
Say it is not a Paying Proposition.

At the meeting of Chambersburg City Council, a letter was read from President Thomas B. Kennedy, of the Chambersburg & Gettysburg Electric Railway Company, in which he told council that his road was and is operated at a loss and cannot pay for the street paving ordered. He offers to sell the trolley line to the town or to quit operating. This is the line that operates as far as Caledonia.

He says in the letter that the average gross earnings have netted $40,132 a year and the expenses $37,748, and after paying taxes the net income is but $1,739, which has been more than put back into the funds by improvements and extensions. He says Red Bridge Park hurt the trolley business to Caledonia and the automobile has about finished all such business. The bond interest is now in default $161,250.

Mr. Kennedy suggests a moderation of the franchise which would permit the Chambersburg & Gettysburg to operate its line on Queen street and to Memorial Circle, abandoning all other tracks, or sell the line to the borough or arrange with the Chambersburg, Greencastle, and Waynesboro to use trackage into Memorial Circle from the east and abandon all other trackage except South Main street, paying not over a block a year.

Council merely ordered the letter filed but all the nine members present were unanimous in saying that Solicitor Walter should go ahead with his application for a receivership.

YOUTH PUT SHOT INTO HIS FOOT

Was Hunting for Raiding Chicken Hawk when he Tripped and Fell.

MOTHER TO HIS RESCUE

Fear that Part of Foot May Have to be Amputated to Save Limb. Several Persons Summoned.

Charles Amberson Wolford, of near Pen Mar, son of Mrs. Mary A. Wolford, shot himself accidentally in the right foot and blew off nearly half of the front of it Wednesday morning.

He was looking for a chicken hawk which has been in the locality for the past several days and, while hunting for it in the woods of John A. Johnston, about 200 yards back of his home, he tripped on some underbrush and, having the gun cocked with his finger on the trigger, shot himself.

His mother heard the shot and immediately afterward his scream, and with two neighbors, ran to where the young man was. Dr. S. B. Thomas was immediately summoned and found the front part of the foot to be shattered and several bones shot out. It may be necessary to amputate part of the foot. He was put under the influence of chloroform so as to allow him to rest.

Wolford was in the draft and applied for exemption as the only support of his mother. Exemption was refused and his case was appealed to the district board. The appeal has not yet been acted upon, or, if so, has been allowed. Wolford was not among the 85 certified for the first quota.

Young Wolford is the only son of his mother now at home and is in charge of the fruit orchard and farming operations. Mrs. Wolford keeps summer boarders at her cottage.

RACHEL C. SLONAKER

Funeral Services in Presbyterian Church on Friday Afternoon.

Rachel C. Slonaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob G. Slonaker, of East Middle street, died at her home Wednesday evening at 5:45, after an illness of some duration. She was born March 26, 1902 and was aged 15 years, 5 months and 23 days.

Besides her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob G. Slonaker, she leaves two sisters, Jannette Slonaker, aged twelve years, and Helen Slonaker, aged six.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon, meeting at the house at 2:00 o'clock. Further services will be held at the Presbyterian church conducted by Rev. F. E. Taylor. Interment in Evergreen cemetery. Friends and relatives will please accept this as notice of funeral.

WILLIAM L. MILLER

Former Baltimore Druggist Dies at Thurmont.

William L. Miller died at the home of his father, William T. Miller, of Thurmont, at 3:25 Wednesday morning. He had been ill about eight weeks. He was formerly a druggist of South Baltimore.

Besides his widow, he leaves his parents, and four brothers and three sisters, as follows: Harry Miller, of Thurmont; George Miller and Robert L. Miller, of Baltimore, and Mark Miller, Miss Lottie Miller, Mrs. Chester Weller, Thurmont, and Mrs. Besse Offey, of Baltimore.

Funeral on Sunday afternoon at one o'clock, with services at the home of his father, conducted by Rev. W. C. Waltemyer.

SAMUEL SHEPARD

Samuel Shepard, son of John W. Shepard, died at his home in Bendersville, this afternoon, at 12:30 o'clock.

Further notice and funeral announcement to-morrow.

TO BRING ARMY UP TO 2,300,000

Baker Making Arrangements for Calling Next Five Hundred Thousand.

FIRST BIG MOBILIZATION
Nearly Half of Initial Draft Army in Camps. Popular Enthusiasm Marks
Departure of Men.

Washington, Sept. 20.—While mobilization of the first major increment of the National Army was proceeding throughout the country, Secretary Baker and the chiefs of the War Department appeared before the Senate Appropriation Committee to present requests for an additional $287,416,000 with which to provide equipment for a total force of 2,300,000 men.

Included among the items is the ordnance equipment for the next 500,000 men of the National Army, although the 300,000 or more men on the move to-day toward the training cantonments are only half of the first call.

All Comforts Provided
Dispatches from all parts of the country indicated that mobilization was being carried forward smoothly and amid scenes of popular enthusiasm. The National Army men were given a tremendous send-off as they trooped to their trains led by the local board officials, who found them qualified to join the ranks of the nation's defenders. Almost the entire 45 per cent of the first call force of 687,000 men will be under military control and training by Saturday.

Every essential for the health and comfort of the men has been provided for. They will be fed and sheltered without difficulty, and their arms, uniforms and all the balance of their war equipment will be ready for them as rapidly as they are ready to use it. There are busy days ahead at the cantonments. Not only must the men be examined by military doctors and finally accepted for army service, but they must be organized immediately into provisional companies for administrative purposes and to make possible their final assignments to the infantry, cavalry or artillery or to the special corps of the Army. The qualifications of each man are to be noted and his ultimate duty as far as practicable will bear some relation to the training he has received in civil life and his own inclinations.

Civilian's Garb For Present
All this will take time. Time also will be required to determine what men of the National Army are to be transferred to the National Guard divisions to fill those divisions to fighting strength. The organization of the companies, battalions, regiments or other units of the National Army itself cannot be completed until this transfer has been made.

Pending the time when the fighting forces of the National Army begin to take shape, it is not essential that full uniform equipment be available for every man assembled at the camps. Preliminary instruction in the school of a soldier, which teaches men how to stand and walk and the bearing and deportment of a trained and disciplined fighting man, can well enough be given in citizens' clothes, if necessary.

Many of the young reserve officers who are to command units of the National Army are not now at the cantonments. For additional training, after their graduation from the officers' training camps, some have been attached to National Guard units. Others are at service schools preparing to become instructors to the batteries, machine-gun companies, signal battalions and all the other highly specialized arms of the service.

TOO MUCH PRACTICE
Americans' French Annoyed French-women who Objected Strongly.

(By United Press)
Paris, Sept. 1.—(By Mail).—American soldiers are making rapid strides in French. At Y. M. C. A. headquarters a group of soldiers gather each evening for their lessons in a room whose windows face a private residence just across the court. The other evening the following question in slow, careful French was asked by the teacher: "Croyez-vous qu'il pleuvra demain?" (Do you think it will rain tomorrow?)

After each American had practiced the question in a none too quiet voice a shrill answer sounded from across the way "Oui, il pleuvra ce soir, demain et tous les jours." (Yes it'll rain this evening, tomorrow and every day.)

When the speaker looked from her window she peered into the smiling faces of a dozen American troopers. The bad state of Paris weather and the persistent rambling of soldiers' practice had evidently struck harshly on her nerves.

ALL PEACHES SOLD
Cumberland Fruit Exchange Does Unprecedented Trade.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 20.—The outlook for the Smock peach season, which begins to-day, is the largest since 1896, as already the entire crop has been sold in advance at $1.50 a bushel. This exchange is 7,000 bushels in arrears in their orders.

Beginning October 1, the yellow and white open-stone Clings peach will be placed on the market at about $1.50 a bushel.

GERMANS EXPECT BRITISH DRIVE

Again Report Shelling of Drum-fire Intensity on the Flanders Front.

London, Sept. 20.—German War Office statements regarding the Flanders front have been characterized in the last few days by hints at British artillery preparations for a resumption of the "big push". To-day again Berlin reported, British shelling "of drumfire" intensity. "There were no infantry attacks, however", the bulletin states. The British official account said there was nothing of special interest to report. It mentioned the York and Lancashire Regiments as having made the previously reported successful raid in Flanders.

Rumanian forces are continuing their local offensive operations. They wrested a height from the Teutons to the south of Grozechti in the last 24 hours.

The French beat off all Teuton assaults at various points of the line and penetrated the German lines northwest of Rheims in a raid.

Berlin gave out an official report of Sunday's Entente raid on German towns. One soldier was slightly wounded near Stuttgart (Wuerttemberg) and damage was caused at Freudenstadt and Colmar, it is admitted. Three of the raiding machines were brought down.

STEAMER SUNK
Master and Eight of Crew Said to be Lost.

London, Sept. 20.—The American steamer Platuria was torpedoed by a German submarine on September 15. Forty five survivors have been landed by the Italian steamer Andrea. The master of the Platuria and eight of the crew were drowned.

New York, Sept. 20.—The Platuria was a tank steamship of 3,445 tons gross register, owned by the Standard Oil Company, and was formerly known as the Diamant. She left Newport News, Va., in July with cargo of oil for Italian ports and was commanded by Capt. John Leslie. Captain Leslie lived in Jersey City, N. J.

Question of Authorship of Music
Raised in $100,000 Suit.

New York, Sept. 20.—Authorship of the music of the now famous war song "Tipperary," was brought into question when Miss Alice Smyth Burton Jay began suit here against Chapell & Co., publishers of the song, for $100,000 damages.

Miss Jay alleges that the original music was written at Green River, Washington, in 1908, as a song to boost the apple industry in that state and that the words of the chorus began:

"I'm on my way to Yakima." It was first played at the Alaska-Yukon fair, she alleges, and later she was surprised to hear it played in Honolulu as Tipperary.

PRIMARY RIOTS IN PHILADELPHIA

Murder and Assaults Mark Hot Political Fight in Quaker
City.

DETECTIVE SHOT DOWN

City Official: Sandbagged, Attorney
Attacked. Imported Gunmen Ter-rorize Fifth Ward.

Philadelphia, Sept. 20.—This city was aroused by murder and riot Wednesday in the Fifth ward, known as the "Bloody Fifth." The murder, that of a policeman, by a man declared to be a gunman imported from Jersey City, was the outcome of a bitter political fight between two rival Republican factions for the control of the ward, which skirts the river front.

For weeks the battle has waged, culminating Wednesday when the primary election was held for the naming of candidates. James A. Carey, holding a rather prominent city office, and Isaac Deutsch were the opponents for the nomination for select councilman from the ward on the Republican ticket. Early in the day Carey, while making the rounds of the ward, was attacked by a man alleged to be Jacob Mascia, of Jersey City. He was struck from behind with a sandbag and then blackjacked. At the same time J. H. Maurer, an assistant district attorney, was attacked. Policeman George A. Eppey, of the vice squad, went to their rescue, and, it is alleged, Mascia placed a revolver against his abdomen and fired. Eppey died later in a hospital. On his deathbed he identified Mascia as his assailant.

Brought to City to Vote
Mascia was arrested and along with him John Costello, also of Jersey City. The police questioned them for an hour and later announced that both men had confessed they were hired in New York or Jersey City with 19 others and brought here to vote.

"We were brought here by a man known as Little Neck to vote in the Fifth ward," Costello's statement, which is in writing, declares.

"We were to vote for Deutsch. We were taken to a club in Pine street, between Fortieth and Fiftieth. There we were met by a man wearing eyeglasses who told us to walk around the town and we were to meet him later at Sixth and Delancy streets, here we were to vote. I was arrested as I walked up the street. When I was arrested I heard a shot, but I did not see who fired it."

Mascia is charged with murder and Costello with being an accessory to the crime. Mascia denied that he did the shooting, but witnesses say he is the guilty man. Both prisoners wore a small piece of white ribbon in the second buttonhole of their vests, which the police say was used as a mark of identification. It is said the other men brought to the city with Mascia and Costello wore similar ribbons. A loaded revolver, with two exploded shells, was found on Mascia, while Costello carried a blackjack. Mascia, according to the police, was under the influence of a drug.

Wednesday's rioting was the culmination of trouble which began Tuesday night, when about thirty thugs attacked the Finletter Club, the Republican organization headquarters in the Fifth ward, and shot up the place. Six men were sent to the hospital. Carey's followers declare this was a pre-arranged affair, organized by the opposition for purposes of intimidation.

THOMPSON PATRIOTIC
Chicago's Mayor Calls on Citizens to Show "We Are United".

Chicago, Sept. 20.—Mayor William Hale Thompson, whose opposition to sending troops to France aroused comment all over the country, Wednesday issued a proclamation occasioned by the departure of selected men from Chicago to the Rockford cantonment. In the course of the preamble he says:

"Whereas it is the duty of all patriotic citizens to stand by our country in times of controversy with any other country, and to show in an unmistakable way that the American people stand behind the Army and the Navy, which represent the majesty of our government—

He calls upon citizens, of the "Sixth German city," as he labeled Chicago some time ago, to show soldiers and sailors "we are united in a common love for the blessings of our free government."

29 BOATS SUNK DURING THE WEEK

Only Eight Large British Vessels but 21 Smaller Crafts Sent Down.

London, Sept. 20.—British merchant ships of 1,600 tons and over sunk by mine or submarine during the past week, numbered eight, according to the admiralty report. Twenty ships under 1,600 tons were also sunk and one fishing vessel.

The foregoing number of vessels of more than 1,600 tons is the smallest sunk by mines or submarines in one week since Germany began her intensified submarine campaign last February, but the number under 1,600 tons is the largest for any week but one since mid-February. The total number of ships sunk is the largest since the week ending June 24.

The admiralty statement for the week ending September 9 showed 12 British vessels of more than 1,600 tons sunk by mines or submarines. That was the lowest mark since the week ending March 10, when 13 vessels of that category were lost. The greatest number of vessels under 1,600 tons was in the week ending May 5, when 22 went down.

SHOOT'S WIFE ON THE ROAD

Then Edward Larue Goes to Thicket and Kills himself.
Maryland Crime.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 20.—Leaving a revival service at Johnson's Church, on the National Pike, just west of Frostburg, late Tuesday night, Albert Larue, 28 years old, pursued his 21-year-old wife down the road as she was driving with relatives and shot her twice with a shotgun. Then he fled into a thicket, placed the gun under his own chin and fired. The shot ripped his face to pieces, killing him instantly. The wounds inflicted upon his wife will not prove fatal, physicians say.

The couple resided on a farm on Little Savage Mountain, in the western part of Allegany county. They had quarreled last Thursday and Mrs. Larue had gone to the home of her father, Joseph Spiker. She was journeying with her sister and the latter's husband, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Alexander, to their home in Borden Shaft, to stay with them Tuesday night. Larue saw them passing while he was at the revival meeting. His wife handed him a bundle of his clothing without speaking to him. He followed them a mile. When he overtook them he asked his wife to return to his home. This she refused to do. He then fired on her.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander jumped from the wagon and the horse ran away with the wounded woman in the vehicle. A party of motorists caught it and took Mrs. Larue to a Frostburg hospital. She told the county officials her married life had been a continual quarrel, the basis of which was her husband's demands that they make their home with his father, which, she said, was distasteful to her, as she wanted a home of her own. Larue had been drafted and the county exemption board had held up his claim for exemption.

THIS STATE FIFTH IN POTATO YIELD

Drops from Third Place in Spite of Greatly Increased Acreage.

Estimates of the potato crops expected in the various states this season indicate that Pennsylvania will drop from third to fifth place as a producing state, but that in increased production over the general average for the past five years it has far out-ranked its rivals.

The figures for Pennsylvania indicate a crop of over 32,000,000 bushels while the five year average from 1911 to 1915 inclusive, was 23,125,000 bushels. This shows an increase in production over the average of 40 per cent. Michigan, which promises to regain first place as a producing state, shows an increase over the five year average of 33 per cent; New York, which promises to rank second, an increase of 30 per cent; Wisconsin, which will rank third, 23 per cent, and Minnesota, which estimates place slightly ahead of Pennsylvania for fourth place, shows an increase of but 12 per cent.

Last year Maine carried off the production honors and New York was second, but the Maine crop this season is said to be a poor one and will be below the average and even smaller than that of a year ago. Most of the states show wonderful increases over the crop of a year ago, the Pennsylvania increase running over 70 per cent.

In corn production the Pennsylvania farmers show an increase of over ten million bushels over 1916 and an increase of 11 per cent over the average production for five years. In oats the increased production is about 15 per cent over the general average crop for five years.

From all sections of the State, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture is receiving reports of increased acreages being prepared for wheat and rye and it is expected that the farmers of the Keystone State will more than make good the extra 14 per cent acreage in wheat and 25 per cent acreage in rye urged by both the National and State Departments.

BIG SIGNS URGE SAVING OF FOOD

Greatest Advertising Campaign in Country's History for this Purpose.

LIGHT AND DARK SIGNS
Electricity Used to Remind People at Night of Necessity to Conserve Nation's Supply.

The Food Administration authorizes the following:

Through the co-operation of advertising companies, the Treasury Department, municipal authorities, and electric-light companies, the United States Food Administration is, without cost, putting on a national outdoor advertising campaign that is probably the biggest thing of the sort ever undertaken. The slogan, "Food Will Win the War—Don't Waste It," is being blazoned in every large city in the country on immense signs on public buildings. These signs are uniform in general design, in paint for daytime display and illuminated by electric light for night.

Advertising companies have patriotically contributed their resources without charge to install the signs. The Treasury Department has granted the right to use the exteriors of Federal premises in the principal cities, including post office buildings, which are under its charge. Mayors and municipal councils are permitting the message to be placed on city halls. Electric-light companies are gratuitously furnishing and installing the bulbs and supplying the power.

Trenton, N. J., was the first city to furnish a space on the front of the municipal building. It was also at Trenton that the first sign was placed on the post office premises. Since then many cities have followed, including Philadelphia, where spectacular electric signs on the north and south sides of the city hall are being installed. In Philadelphia, also, four large bulletins are being placed on the post office. Plans have been perfected for the same in New York City, Norfolk, Richmond, and many other cities.

In the National Capital the local electric power company has installed a big electric sign at Pennsylvania Avenue and Seventh Street, with the slogan shown by means of more than 2,000 lamps.

Combined Ages of this Couple Total 139 Years.

Frederick Post, Cupid, the blind god of love, who shoots his arrows aimlessly, not knowing or caring where they light, has shot his bolt at an elderly couple and pierced their hearts. These victims hail from Thurmont. The prospective groom, aged 74, took out a license yesterday for himself and his fair bride, who confesses to an age of 65. Josiah G. Messner is the name claimed by the future groom, while the other party lays claim to the name of Almida Baker.

Of Messner, it was learned that he was a blue uniform during the Civil War, fighting for the preservation of the Union. He is now comfortably settled in Thurmont, enjoying the income which is the fruit of his early labors, and drawing a Federal pension. It is said that he had been married once before. Apparently his earlier voyage on the sea of matrimony was a successful one, for he has just embarked on a second voyage, showing that in spite of his advanced years he still retains his youthful impressions. Of Almida, nothing could be learned.

MINOR MISHAPS

Painful but not Serious Injuries to County People.

Joseph Kuhn, of Berlin Junction, sustained a large gash over the instep of his right foot, when the pick he was using in the quarry of the Alwine brick plant, at that place, slipped and struck him.

Andrew Sponseller, residing in New Oxford, had the misfortune to have the end of the middle finger of his left hand severed by having it caught in some machinery at the Alwine brick plant, at Berlin Junction, where he is employed.

Pounding a large stone with an ax, Arthur, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Alwine, of Berlin Junction, sustained a painful wound, just above his right eye, when a spall was knocked from the stone and hit him. All three had physicians treat their injuries.

RETURN WOUNDED TO USUAL DUTIES

United States will Put them Back at their Own Occupations in Good Time.

SPECIALISTS IN CHARGE

America Expected to Set Record in Showing how thoroughly Men Can Recover from Injuries.

The Surgeon General of the Army, Maj. Gen. William C. Gorgas, authorized the following:

The whole conception of governmental and national responsibility for caring for the wounded has undergone radical change during the months of study given the subject by experts serving with the Medical Officers' Reserve Corps and others consulting with them. Instead of the old idea that responsibility ended with the return of the soldier to private life with his wounds healed and such pension as he might be given, it is now considered that it is the duty of the Government to equip and re-educate the wounded man, after healing his wounds, and to return him to civil life ready to be as useful to himself and his country as possible.

"Reconstruction Hospitals"

To carry out this idea, plans are well under way for building "reconstruction hospitals" in large centers of population. Sites have been chosen, though not all finally approved, in the following cities: Boston, New York; Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Buffalo, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Paul, Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Denver, Kansas City, St. Louis, Memphis, Richmond, Atlanta, and New Orleans. Those in Boston, New York, Washington, and Chicago will probably be constructed first. Each will be built as a 500-bed hospital, but with provision for enlargement to 1,000 beds if needed.

These hospitals will not be the last step in the return of the wounded soldiers to civil life. When the soldiers are able to take up industrial training, further provision will be ready. The injured man may be retrained to his previous occupation to conform with his handicapped condition or retrained for a new industry compatible with that condition. Additional education will be given to those fitted for it, and men may in some cases be returned to more valuable work than that from which they were called to war. Workshops will be provided at the hospitals, but arrangements will also be made with outside industries whereby more elaborate methods of training may be carried on. An employment bureau will be established to place men so trained in different parts of the United States.

Men in Charge of the Work

This whole matter comes under the department of military orthopedic surgery recently organized in the Medical Department of the Army. The following officers of the Medical Reserve Corps are in charge of the work: Maj. Elliott G. Brackett, of Boston, director of the department of military orthopedics to the Surgeon General; Maj. Joel E. Goldthwait, of Boston, director of military orthopedics for the expeditionary forces; Maj. David Silver, of Pittsburgh, assistant director of military orthopedics to the Surgeon General. The following, in conjunction with the above staff, compose the orthopedic council: Dr. Fred H. Albee, of New York; Dr. G. Wilym Davis, of Philadelphia; Dr. Albert H. Freiberg, of Cincinnati; Dr. Robert W. Lovett, of Boston; and Dr. John L. Porter, of Chicago.

Arrangements have been made by the department of military orthopedics to care for soldiers, so far as orthopedics (the prevention of deformity) is concerned, continuously until they are returned either to active service or civil life. Orthopedic surgeons will be attached to the medical force near the firing line and to the different hospitals back of the base orthopedic hospital, which will be established within 100 miles of the firing line. In this hospital, in addition to orthopedic surgical care, there will be equipment for surgical reconstruction work and "curative workshops," in which men will acquire ability to use injured members while doing work interesting and useful in itself. This method has supplanted the old and tiresome one of prescribing a set of motions for a man to go through with no purpose than to re-acquire use of his injured part.

More Experts to Go Overseas

In addition to the American orthopedic surgeons now working abroad under Col. Jones, of England, others will soon go overseas. Experienced surgeons, and a large number of younger surgeons who will work under competent directors, will go abroad for this work, all to be under the direction of Maj. Goldthwait. These orthopedic surgeons will work in England among the British force and when needed will be transferred to France to work among American soldiers.

It is not the intention that men able to go back to the firing line shall be returned to this country unless their convalescence will extend over a period of a considerable number of months. Soldiers unable to return to duty will be sent to the reconstruction hospitals in the United States.

Instructors and Examiners
Instructors and examiners for all the camps are also being furnished by the department of military orthopedic surgery. A number of older and more experienced surgeons will act as instructors and supervisors for each of the groups into which the camps will be divided; a number of orthopedic surgeons will be detailed as attending surgeons at each camp to act as examiners and as consultants to the camp's other surgeons; directions are being provided for instruction of medical officers in military orthopedic surgery, emphasis being made on foot, back, and joint conditions as affecting the acceptance or rejection of recruits; and careful instruction is planned for line officers so that they will recognize the simpler orthopedic conditions and refer to the camp surgeon any men who develop them.

YORK COUNTY

TO INSURE EMPLOYEES

Employees of the Fitz Water-wheel Company, Hanover, who have been drafted into or who have volunteered for service in the United States army will be insured for amounts of from one to five thousand dollars, according to the length of their service with the firm. The Company will stand the full expense of such insurance, and has also planned to insure sons of employees, whether employed by it or not. Workmen who volunteer or are drafted during the remainder of the war will be treated with the same consideration. This announcement was made by C. Fisher Ehrhart, treasurer of the firm, at the conclusion of a banquet given by the Company in Miller's Hall, in honor of the employees who have already gone and those who left to-day. There were 150 persons in attendance, and the statement was greeted with rounds of applause.

BROTHER KILLED IN THE WEST

Mrs. S. P. Mauger, of Hanover, received a telegram Tuesday that her brother, Eli Foucht, of Rutland, Ill., was killed by a train. He was 73 years old. He leaves a wife and three sons. Last January Mr. and Mrs. Foucht celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

ANOTHER BREAKS JAIL

Evidently figuring that it would require less energy to tear out a portion of the wall of his cell than to break down a door, Private Fitzgerald, a soldier from the camp at Gettysburg, who had been confined to the Hanover borough lock-up at a late hour Tuesday night, proceeded to pull out the bricks and in an exceptionally short time was putting as much distance between the lock-up and himself as possible. It was the third escape from the place designated as the Hanover lock-up within the past thirty six hours, and it was accomplished with every bit as much ease as those of the previous night. The building is in such a condition that it was exceedingly easy for Fitzgerald to remove the bricks, and he pulled out enough to permit him to get through the hole without difficulty.

No trace of the soldier who escaped on Monday night has been found, and it is doubtful if any efforts are being made to re-take him.

Fitzgerald, the man who broke out of the place Tuesday night, together with Harry Davis, another private from the Gettysburg camp, were taken into custody shortly after midnight on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct. Both were seemingly in a badly intoxicated condition. Davis was evidently too far gone to make an effort to escape, for he was found this morning sleeping off his jag, but the only trace as to the whereabouts of Fitzgerald proved the hole in the wall through which he had crawled.

CUMBERLAND CO

TO HEAR BANKER SPEAK

An invitation has been sent to the Carlisle Chamber of Commerce by the Harrisburg body for members and officials of the Carlisle organization to attend the luncheon in the Board of Trade Hall at Harrisburg on Wednesday, September 26. The meeting will be addressed by Otto H. Kahn, a member of Kahn, Loeb and Company, international bankers of New York City. He is a leading authority on war taxation of business and incomes and the need of supporting the Liberty Loans. Mr. Kahn has recently gained fame by his denunciation of Germany's conduct during the war and his description of the issues and the need of the Allies being supported wholeheartedly. Carlisle men, bankers and those interested in the new Liberty Loan are expected to attend.

TO GET HEAVY SENTENCE

Detective Bentley left Tuesday for the Western Penitentiary, armed with a bench warrant, and will take to Carlisle for sentence in October, Eddie Morris, former county resident and jail breaker, whose term of six years for manslaughter from Westmoreland county was up Wednesday. Morris was sentenced to 27 years in the Carlisle courts and broke jail, being sentenced in the West before he was apprehended. An additional sentence of three years for jail breaking, coupled with his original punishment cause the man to face 30 years in the Eastern Penitentiary.

CONWAY HALL CLOSES

Announcement was made Wednesday, the date set for the opening, that Conway Hall, Carlisle, the preparatory institution for Dickinson College, will not open this year, but will be closed until the fall of 1918, as the result of war conditions. A number of last year's students are in some branch of the service, others are engaged in work of various kinds and do not contemplate returning to the institution. The number of younger boys seeking education is said to be small, many who intended going to school having put off their education for several years and are taking advantage of war wages in their localities. It was at first planned to have the courses conducted on an abridged scale in connection with the college, but it was finally decided to miss a year and letters to this effect have been sent out. The Conway Hall building, given by Andrew Carnegie and named in honor of Dr. David Conway, will be closed.

LEADS INDIAN BAND

James Riley Wheelock, graduate of the institution and noted as a musician, has been selected as musical director at the Carlisle Indian School, to succeed the late C. S. Tyrrell, who died while in service some months ago. James Holy Eagle, a student, who has been in charge, has left the school to go to his home. Wheelock was noted as a foot ball star during his time in Carlisle, and after his graduation formed the Wheelock band of Indians, which gave concerts in all parts of the country. In recent years he has headed a number of musical organizations, among them the Pennsylvania Railroad Y. M. C. A. band at Enola; Waynesboro and Hagerstown municipal organization. The band at the school now numbers sixty pieces and it is planned to enlarge it. The Indians will play for the Carlisle fair next week.

Fighters' Tobacco Bags Need Refilling before Long.

(By United Press)

Washington, Sept. 20.—Don't think that just because your local papers appeal for contributions to the soldiers' smoke fund has been running for a long time they've got all the money they need for smokes.

It's taking a lot of tobacco for America to fight this war.

Just the little handful of fighting men we've got at the French front now yelled back across the Atlantic to the Red Cross the other day for ten tons of the stuff. Remember that suitable tobacco for Americans can't be found in France. Four million, eight hundred and ten thousand cigarettes already have gone across to the boys. They're merely a starter; just a puff in the smoke-cloud, you might say.

Then there's the matter of smoking tobacco in sacks and cans.

"Thousands of the boys", cabled Maj. Murphy from Red Cross headquarters in France, "have faithfully clung to their pipes, though they have been without the makings for weeks".

To relieve them for a few days the Red Cross has just shot over a ton of smoking tobacco. The other nine tons will follow immediately.

BACKACHE IS A WARNING
Gettysburg People Should Not Neglect Their Kidneys.

Backache is often nature's most frequent signal of weakened kidneys. To cure the pains and aches, to remove the lameness when it arises from weakened kidneys, you must reach the cause—the kidneys. If you have pain through the small of your back, bladder disorders, headaches, dizzy spells, or are nervous and depressed, start treating the kidneys with a tested kidney remedy.

Doan's Kidney Pills have been proved good and are especially for weak kidneys. Doan's have been used in kidney trouble for over 50 years. Read Gettysburg testimony.

Mrs. D. F. Arendt, Railroad St., says: "I was suffering from backache and dizzy headaches. My kidneys acted too frequently. I felt all worn out at times. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at the People's Drug Store and they gave me relief at once. I always keep Doan's on hand in case of need." 60c, at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

ARENDTSVILLE

Arendtsville—Last Saturday when Lewis Kane and Charles Crum were on their way to Biglerville and had gone about half way, the steering gear failed to work and the automobile turned to the side of the road and struck a telegraph pole. The occupants were not hurt. The front axle of the car was bent and it was towed to a garage for repairs.

The grapes are a good crop this season, not injured by the grape leaf hopper like last season, that destroyed the leaves and the hot sun wilted the grapes. Quinces are a short crop owing to the blight.

Goldsmith's World-Wideness.

One of the most memorable things to be remarked in Goldsmith is the note of world-wideness which he introduced into literature. There is a total absence in him of local prejudice, which is in strong contrast with the vigorous and almost barbaric insularity of Johnson. He had once thought of emigrating to America, and would have done so but for one of those humorous incidents so common in his haphazard life.

Wanted an Escort.

A little boy had a birthday party, his guests being around the ages of five and six years. After having spent a pleasant afternoon they all started for home at about five o'clock. After a while the little boy's mother noticed two little girls sitting on the steps and said: "You better go home, little girls, before it gets dark." One spoke up and said: "I want a boy to take me home."

TO OUR READERS

The Gettysburg Times takes absolutely no part in politics, being neutral on all such matters. Anything that appears in our general news columns, concerning state or national politics, is furnished us by The American Press Association, a concern which gives the same news to Republican, Democratic, Prohibition, or Socialist papers and which is strictly non-partisan.

EVERYBODY GETS IT

When we tell you that almost 1000 copies of The Times are distributed to paying subscribers in Gettysburg every evening you can have some idea of the way the people of the town read the paper. The population is estimated at 4500, and at the usual average of five to a family, there would be only 900 residences in the town.

When we tell you that no less than 115 copies of The Times go daily to subscribers in Biglerville, 90 in Arendtsville, 65 in Bendersville, and 55 in Aspers, you can see how the upper end of the county reads the paper. And the routes from Biglerville, Bendersville, and Gardners take hundreds more.

When we tell you that Littlestown receives 78 copies of The Times each evening, and New Oxford almost 50, that Hunterstown, and all the other towns in that general section contribute their full share you can realize how completely The Times covers that neighborhood.

When our list shows 75 subscribers in Fairfield, 47 in Cashtown, 61 at Orrtanna, and 32 at McKnightstown, you can get some conception of the percentage of people who take The Times in the western end of the county.

And about 800 papers on Gettysburg's rural routes every day bring all those people into close touch with the town.

Consider the above figures a bit, think over the sizes of the various towns mentioned and then notice how many papers go there, and you will readily see that almost everybody reads

THE TIMES.

Chapter I—At her home in the Street, Sidney Page agrees to marry Joe Drummond "after years and years" and talks to K. Le Moyne, the new roomer.

Chapter II—Sidney's aunt Harriet, who has been dressingmaking with Sidney's mother, launches an independent modiste's parlor. Sidney gets Dr. Ed Wilson's influence with his brother, Doctor Max, the successful young surgeon, to place her in the hospital as a probationer nurse.

Chapter III—K. becomes acquainted in the Street. Sidney asks him to stay on as a roomer and explains her plans for financing her home while she is in the school.

Chapter IV—Doctor Max gets Sidney into the hospital school.

Chapter V—Sidney and K. spend an afternoon in the country. Sidney falls into the river.

Chapter VI—Max asks Carlotta Harrison, a probationer, to take a motor ride with him. Joe finds Sidney and K. at the country hotel, where Sidney is drying her clothes, and is insanely jealous.

Chapter VII—While Sidney and K. are dining on the terrace, Max and Carlotta appear. K. does not see them, but for some reason seeing him disturbs Carlotta strangely.

Chapter VIII—Joe reproaches Sidney. She confides to K. that Joe knows now she will not marry him.

Chapter IX—Sidney goes to training school and at home relies more and more on K. Max meets K. and recognizes him as Edwardes, a brilliant young surgeon who has been thought lost on the Titanic. K.'s losing cases lost him faith in himself and he quit and hid from the world.

Chapter X—Carlotta fears Sidney Christine Lorenz, and Palmer How are married. The hard facts of his new life puzzle Sidney.

Chapter XI—Max continued his flirtation with Carlotta, who becomes jealous of Sidney. K. coaches Max in his work, but remains a clerk in the gas office.

Chapter XII—Palmer and Christine move into rooms in Sidney's home. Sidney's mother dies. Palmer neglects Christine.

Chapter XIII—On a joy ride with Grace, a young girl, Palmer is hurt and Johnny, the chauffeur, seriously injured.

Chapter XIV—Sidney nurses Johnny. Carlotta changes the medicine that Sidney is to give him.

Chapter XV—Johnny nearly dies. K., who has brought Johnny's mother to him saves the boy and comforts Sidney.

Chapter XVI—Sidney is suspended for 30 days. She confides to K. that she worships Max. Joe warns her against Max.

Chapter XVII—Christine, neglected by Palmer, turns to K., who tells her it is only reaction.

Chapter XVIII—Sidney discovers that Max is flirting with Carlotta.

Chapter XIX—Max and Sidney become engaged. She tells K.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Max had rallied well, and things looked bright for him. His patient did not need him, but K. was anxious to find Joe; so he telephoned the gas office and got a day off.

For the present, at least, K.'s revealed identity was safe. Hospitals keep their secrets well. And it is doubtful if the Street would have been greatly concerned even had it known. It had never heard of Edwardes, of the Edwardes clinic, or the Edwardes operation. Its medical knowledge comprised the two Wilsons and the osteopath around the corner. When, as would happen soon, it learned of Max Wilson's injury, it would be more concerned with his chances of recovery than with the manner of it. That was as it should be.

But Joe's affair with Sidney had been the talk of the neighborhood. If the boy disappeared, a scandal would be inevitable. Twenty people had seen him at Schwitzer's and would know him again.

To save Joe, then, was K.'s first care.

At first it seemed as if the boy had frustrated him. He had not been home all night. Christine, waylaying K. in the little hall, told him that.

"Mrs. Drummond was here," she said. "She is almost frantic. She says Joe has not been home all night. She says he looks up to you, and she thought if you could find him and would talk to him—"

"Joe was with me last night. We had supper at the White Springs hotel. Tell Mrs. Drummond he was in good spirits, and that she's not to worry. I feel sure she will hear from him today. Something went wrong with his car, perhaps, after he left me."

He bathed and shaved hurriedly. Katie brought his coffee to his room, and he drank it standing. As he went down the Street, he saw Mrs. McKee in her doorway, with a little knot of people around her. The Street was getting the night's news.

He rented a car at a local garage, and drove himself out into the country. He was not minded to have any eyes on him that day. He went to Schwitzer's first. Schwitzer himself was not in sight. Bill, the bartender, was scrubbing the porch, and a farmhand was gathering bottles from the grass into a box. The dead lanterns swung in the morning air, and from back on the hill came the staccato sounds of a reaping machine.

"Where's Schwitzer?"

"At the barn," Bill grinned. He recognized K., and mopping dry a part of the porch, pointed a chair on it.

"Sit down," went now the man who got his last night? Dead?"

"No."

"County detectives were here bright and early. After the lady's husband, I guess we lose our license over this."

"Bill, did you see the man who fired that shot last night?"

A sort of haze came over Bill's face, as if he had dropped a curtain before his eyes. But his reply came promptly: "Surest thing in the world. Close to him as you are to me. Dark man, about thirty, small mustache—"

"Bill, you're lying, and I know it. Where is he?"

The barkeeper kept his head, but his color changed.

"I don't know anything about him." He thrust his mop into the pail. K. rose. The farmhand had filled his box and disappeared around the corner of the house. K. put his hand on Bill's shirt-sleeved arm.

"We've got to get him away from here, Bill. The county men may come back to search the premises."

"How do I know you aren't one of them?"

"I guess you know I'm not. He's a friend of mine. As a matter of fact, I followed him here; but I was too late. Did he take the revolver away with him?"

"I took it from him. It's under the bar."

"Get it for me."

From inside the bar Bill took a careful survey of Le Moyne. He noted his tall figure and shabby suit, the slight stoop, the hair graying over his ears. Barkeepers know men: that's part of the job. After his survey he went behind the bar and got the revolver from under an overturned pail.

K. thrust it into his pocket.

"Now," he said quietly, "where is he?"

"In my room—top of the house."

K. followed Bill up the stairs down which he had carried Wilson's unconscious figure. The room under the eaves was stifling. An unmade bed stood in a corner. Joe was sitting in the corner farthest from the window. When the door swung open, he looked up. He showed no interest on seeing K., who had to stoop to enter the low room.

"Hello, Joe."

"I thought you were the police. Is he dead?"

"No, indeed."

"I wish I'd killed him!"

"Oh, no, you don't. You're glad you didn't, and so am I."

"Huh?"

K. sat down on the bed. Loud calls from below took Bill out of the room. As he closed the door behind him, K.'s voice took on a new tone:

"Joe, why did you do it?"

"You know. Don't go into that, I did it, and I'll stand by it."

"Has it occurred to you that you made a mistake?"

"Go and tell that to somebody who'll believe you!" he sneered. "They came here and took a room. I met him coming out of it. I'd do it again if I had a chance, and do it better."

"It was not Sidney."

"Aw, cawc it!"

"It's a fact. I got here not two minutes after you left. The girl was still there. It was someone else. Sidney was not out of the hospital last night. She attended a lecture, and then an operation."

Joe looked at it. It was undoubtedly a relief to him to know that it had not been Sidney; but if K. expected any remorse, he did not get it.

"If he is that sort, he deserves what he got," said the boy grimly.

And K. had no reply. But Joe was glad to talk. K. got it by degrees—his mad flight into the darkness, until his gasoline gave out; his resolve to walk back and surrender himself at Schwitzer's, so that there could be no mistake as to who had committed the crime.

"I thought you were the police."

"No, indeed."

"I wish I'd killed him!"

"Oh, no, you don't. You're glad you didn't, and so am I."

"Huh?"

K. sat down on the bed. Loud calls from below took Bill out of the room. As he closed the door behind him, K.'s voice took on a new tone:

intended to write a confession and then shoot myself," he told K. "But the barkeeper got my gun out of my pocket. And—"

After a pause: "Does she know who did it?"

"Sidney? No."

"Then, if he gets better, she'll marry him anyhow."

"Possibly. That's not up to us, Joe. The thing we've got to do is to hush this thing up, and get you away."

"I'd go to Cuba, but I haven't the money."

K. rose. "I think I can get it." He turned in the doorway.

"Sidney need never know who did it."

"I'm not ashamed of it." But his face showed relief.

There are times when some cataclysm tears down the walls of reserve between men. That time had come for Joe, and to a lesser extent for K. The boy rose and followed him to the door.

"Why don't you tell her the whole thing—the whole filthy story?" he asked. "She'd never look at him again. You're crazy about her. I haven't got a chance. It would give you one."

"I want her, God knows!" said K. "But not that way, boy."

The five thousand dollar check from Mr. Lorenz had saved Palmer Howe's credit. On the strength of the deposit he borrowed money at the bank with which he meant to pay his bills, arrears at the University and Country clubs, a hundred dollars lost throwing aces with poker dice, and various small obligations of Christine's.

The immediate result of the money was good. He drank nothing for a week, went into the details of the new venture with Christine's father, sat at home with Christine on her balcony in the evenings. With the knowledge that he could pay his debts, he postponed the day. He liked the feeling of a bank account in four figures.

Christine had been making a fight, although her heart was only half in it. She was resolutely good-humored, ignored the past, dressed for Palmer in the things he liked. They still took their dinners at the Lorenz house up the street. When she saw that the haphazard table service there irritated him, she coaxed her mother into getting a butler.

The Street sniffed at the butler behind his stately back. Secretly and in its heart, it was proud of him. With a half-dozen automobiles, and Christine Howe putting on low neck in the evenings, and now a butler, not to mention Harriet Kennedy's Mimi, it ceased to pride itself on its commonplaceness, ignorant of the fact that in its very lack of affectation had lain its charm.

On the night that Joe shot Max Wilson, Palmer was noticeably restless. He had seen Grace Irving that day for the first time, but once, since the motor accident. The girl had a strange fascination for him. The sight of her walking sedately along in her shop-girl's black dress had been enough to set his pulses racing. When he saw that she meant to pass him, he fell into step beside her.

"I believe you were going to cut me! Still in the store?"

"Yes." And, after a second's hesitation: "I'm keeping straight, too."

"Do you have to walk as fast as this?"

"I said I was in a hurry. Once a week I get off a little early to go to the hospital. The Rosenfeld boy—"

The monstrous injustice of the thing overcame her. Palmer and she walking about, and the boy lying on his hot bed! She choked.

"Well?"

"He worries about his mother. If you could give her some money, it would help."

"Money! I paid his board for two months in the hospital."

When she did acknowledge this generosity—amounting to forty-eight dollars—his irritation grew. Her silence was an accusation. She was too calm in his presence, too cold. Where it had pleased his pride to think that he had given her up, he found that the shoe was on the other foot.

At the entrance to a side street she stopped.

"I turn off here."

"May I come and see you sometime?"

"No, please."

"That's flat, is it?"

"It is, Palmer."

He swung around savagely and left her.

The next day he drew over a thousand dollars from the bank. A good many of his debts he wanted to pay in cash; there was no use putting checks through, with incriminating endorsements. Also, he liked the idea of carrying a roll of money around. The big fellows at the clubs always had a wad and peeled off bills like skin off an onion. He took a couple of drinks to celebrate his approaching immunity from debt.

At nine o'clock that night he found Grace. She had moved to a cheap apartment which she shared with two other girls from the store. The others were out. It was his lucky day, surely.

His drunkenness was of the mind, mostly. His muscles were well controlled. The lines from his nose to the corners of his mouth were slightly accentuated, his eyes open a trifle wider than usual. That and a slight paleness of the nostrils were the only evidences of his condition. But Grace knew the signs.

"You can't come in."

"Of course I'm coming in."

She retreated before him, her eyes watchful. Men in his condition were apt to be as quick with a blow as with a caress. But, having gained his point, he was amiable.

"Get your things on and come out. We can take in a roof-garden."

"I've told you I'm not doing that sort of thing."

WILSON FAVORS JUNIOR BRANCH

Red Cross for Boys and Girls is Fine Thing, Says the President.

URGES THAT ALL JOIN
Writes Letter Telling of his Gratification over Movement and Wishing Best of Success.

Washington, September 20.—Organization of the Junior Red Cross among public school children throughout the United States has been warmly approved by President Wilson in a letter to Dr. H. N. MacCracken, President of Vassar College, in charge of the organization of the new Junior Membership Bureau.

The President's message, which is to be read to all the twenty-two million school children being enlisted in the movement, is as follows:

"My dear Dr. MacCracken:
"I am very much interested to learn that you have taken up the work of organizing a junior membership of the Red Cross for work among the school children, and I write to express my very deep interest in the movement."

"If you have an opportunity will you not bid the young people, whom you are assembling in this organization, a very warm welcome from me and give them a message of the heartiest good cheer as they enroll themselves among the servants of the nation and of the people everywhere who need help and comfort and encouragement?"

"I think they will all look back upon this work they are undertaking as a happy circumstance of their school days."

Very sincerely yours,
Woodrow Wilson.

Effective plans are now under way in co-operation with the boards of education of various states for launching junior membership campaigns. Schools are to be recruited as units with membership fees of 25 cents for each pupil. In addition, to stimulate and educate children in the Red Cross, plans are being made to utilize the youthful members in the making of the simpler articles and supplies needed in the hospitals abroad.

TRUCK DRIVERS FOR RED CROSS

Send Squad Across to be Used in Transportation Work. More to Follow.

Washington, Sept. 19.—Eleven experienced American motor truck drivers have just sailed for France, where they are to serve in the Red Cross Transportation Service. Sixty-one more men are being trained by the Red Cross in motor-car factories, at Cleveland, Detroit and Buffalo, and are to sail soon.

The seventy-two men have been recruited in response to a cablegram from Major Grayson M. P. Murphy, head of the Red Cross Commission to France, asking for expert motor truck drivers without delay.

Owing to the congestion of the railroads in France, large quantities of Red Cross supplies are being transported by motor truck from seaports to Paris and other distribution centers.

Drivers are being organized into crews, and will be handled on a military basis, working as a part of the Red Cross Transportation Service, under the command of Major James H. Perkins. Major Perkins went over as Deputy Commissioner with the Red Cross Commission to France, and was commissioned in the Quartermaster's Corps attached to General Pershing's staff.

To meet the salaries and transportation expenses of the men now being added to its foreign motor Transportation Service, the Red Cross War Council has voted an appropriation of $17,300.

KAISER WANTS AN AMERICAN

Cuts Price on Capture of First One But Adds Week to Captor's Leave.
Paris, Sept. 19.—The American headquarters staff in France has just been informed by the French authorities that Emperor William has promised a prize of 300 marks ($75) and three weeks leave to the first German who captures an American soldier.

This information came from a German prisoner recently taken. He declares that the offer was contained in an order issued throughout the army.

A despatch from British headquarters in France and Belgium, September 15, said the German general commanding the Eleventh reserve division had promised to the man who brought in the first American dead or alive to headquarters, the Iron Cross of the first class, 400 marks ($100) and two weeks' leave. This offer had been made was disclosed by the diary of a captured Prussian sergeant of the Twenty-third reserve infantry regiment.

Costa Rica Finds Teutons in Conspiracy With Former President.

San Jose, Costa Rica, Sept. 19.—Diplomatic relations between Costa Rica and Germany are considered severed as the result of steps taken by the government.

General Tinoco, the president, discovered German residents had joined with some of the followers of former President Gonzalez in conspiring against the government.

Three of the most prominent Germans, Kumpel, Altschul and Orlich have been arrested. All Germans residing in Costa Rican ports have been ordered interned. President Tinoco has called congress in special session and will lay the matter before it.

Elephant Scares Horse to Death.

Lansdale, Sept. 19.—Seeing an elephant for the first time, a horse owned by Charles W. Stetson, Lansdale, dropped dead. The elephant was here with a circus. The horse was thirty-one years old.

Gettysburg's "Drumfire."

The heaviest battery of artillery ever mounted in the world up to 1862 was before Yorktown, when the federal army was maneuvering to enter Richmond. It consisted of a 500 pounder and two 200 pounder Parrott rifled cannon. Our greatest artillery "stunt" was the Gettysburg cannonade. It lasted about two hours, on a line of battle four to five miles long. We had 82,000 men and 300 guns. The Confederates 75,000 men and 190 guns. There were 50,000 killed and wounded, a mortality much higher than in modern wars.—Everybody's Magazine.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

NOURISHING BANANAS.

BANANA FRITTERS.—Three bananas, one cupful bread flour, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, one tablespoonful powdered sugar, one-third teaspoonful salt, two cupfuls milk, one egg, one tablespoonful lemon juice. Mix and sift dry ingredients. Beat egg until light, add milk and combine mixtures, then add lemon juice and banana fruit forced through a sieve. Drop by spoonfuls, fry in deep fat and drain. Serve with lemon juice.

BANANA SALAD.—Remove one section of skin from each of four bananas. Take out fruit, scrape and cut fruit from one banana in thin slices; fruit from other three bananas in one-half inch cubes. Marinate cubes with French dressing. Refill skins and garnish each with slices of banana. Stack around a mound of lettuce leaves.

BANANA ICE CREAM.—One quart cream, four bananas, one and one-third tablespoonfuls lemon juice, one cupful sugar, few grains of salt. Remove skins and scrape bananas, then force through a sieve. Add remaining ingredients. Freeze.

Baked Bananas.—Fill a shallow dish with bananas peeled and cut in halves lengthwise and crosswise. Allow one level tablespoonful sugar, one teaspoonful melted butter, a few grains salt, one teaspoonful lemon juice and two tablespoonfuls water to each banana. Bake frequently with the slip and bake slowly half an hour or till bananas are red and crisp thick. Serve hot.

BANANA SHORTCAKE.—When berries or fresh peaches are out of season use sliced bananas between and on top of layers of shortcake. Add the fruit the moment before serving, as the heat will discolor the fruit if allowed to stand after slicing when uncooked.

BANANA WHIP.—Press the pulp of three bananas through a ricer, vegetable press or sieve. Cook with one-third cupful sugar and tablespoonful lemon juice until scalded. Cool and flavor with a few drops of vanilla or a little wine. Add also a few grains of salt, then beat gradually into a cupful of double cream beaten solid with an egg beater. Set aside to become chilled, then serve piled high in small glasses with a sprinkling of fine chopped pistachio nuts on top. Line the glasses before filling with slices of banana. This makes a particularly good Charlotte russe filling.

Making Scissors Last Longer.

If a pair of scissors is being hung up, the blades open, they will last longer than those which are put away with the blades closed. Many scissors have the blades slightly bowed at the tip, which helps to make them cut quickly and accurately. When such scissors are left closed for any length of time the blades lose their springiness where they come together.

FLEETS OF ICEBERGS.

Sometimes They Go In Clusters and Again In Long Lines.

Among the perils and wonders of the ocean there are few more interesting things than icebergs, interesting not only by reason of their gigantic size, their fantastic shapes, their exceeding beauty, but also for the manner where-in they array themselves.

Icebergs exhibit a tendency to form both clusters and long lines, and these groupings may arise from the effects both of ocean currents and of storms.

Some very singular lines of bergs, extending for many hundreds of miles east of Newfoundland, have been shown on official charts issued by the government. Two of these cross each other, each keeping on its independent course after the crossing. In several instances parallel lines of bergs leave long spaces of clear water between them.

Curiously enough, while enormous fields of ice invade the so called "steamship lanes" of the Atlantic at the opening of spring during certain years, in other years at that season there is comparatively little ice to be seen. The ice comes, of course, from the edges of the arctic regions, from the icebound coasts of Greenland and Labrador, where huge bergs, broken from the front of the glaciers at the point where they reach the sea, start on their long journeys toward the south, driven by the great current that flows from Baffin bay into the northern Atlantic ocean.

Heron's Foot for Bait.

So great is the heron's reputation as a fisher that it has long been thought that it's feet, owing to some peculiar scent or oil which were supposed to possess, attracted the fish, more especially eels, to within easy reach of its beak. In some places the rustic angler still believes that if a heron's foot is placed with his worms the latter are more eagerly taken by fish.—London Outlook.

Certain to Win Fashionable Favor.

Brown homespun is utilized to develop this stylish costume with Norfolk jacket and three-piece skirt. The jacket may be made with or without a yoke.

One must be wise in the ways of fashion to gamble on futurities, but there is no doubt about the favor the Norfolk jacket will enjoy during the coming Fall and Winter. The jacket shown here has no yoke, but the pattern provides for one. The ap plied straps are stitched on the front and back simulating box-plaits. The front may be buttoned up to the neck and rolled to form revers. The suit is very effective carried out in brown homespun and worn with a four-piece skirt closely fitted about the hip. Medium size requires 4½ yards 54-inch material for the suit.

A Norfolk jacket to be really smart, must have good lines; and good lines depend largely upon the manner in which the design is cut. With a competent guide to show how the sections are laid on the pattern, one should have no trouble with this design. After the material is folded smoothly and placed on the cutting table (or any flat surface), place the back of the pattern along the lengthwise fold. Then follow with the upper sleeve section and cuff, placing these with large "O" perforations on a lengthwise thread. The yoke and collar come next, being laid on the lengthwise fold, but the lap, with large "O" perforations on a lengthwise thread, comes between the collar and the belt, which is laid along the lengthwise fold.

All of the remaining pieces of the pattern are placed on the homespun so that the large "O" perforations rest on a lengthwise thread. The straps and underfacing are placed above the back; the front is arranged opposite the upper sleeve section, with straight line along the selvage and the pocket, yoke and lower sleeve section are placed on the remaining material.

A belt of self-material holds in the fullness of the jacket.

When made with a yoke, the upper parts of the front, back and straps may be cut off along the upper small "o" perforations.

A belt of self-material holds in the fullness of the jacket.

Protect Garden Stuff Against Frost Damage

The United States weather bureau, realizing that a good deal more produce will be subject to loss from frost this fall than ever before, have advised early preparedness on the part of farmers.

First, the specialists suggest, protective coverings should be made ready. Old blankets, tarpaulins, sacks, straw, manure, paper and various other materials may be used for covering. The conditions favorable for the formation of early frost in fall are usually of short duration, and consequently protective measures ordinarily will have to be employed only for a day or two. After the first fall frost there is generally a return to normal temperatures for a week or more, during which time immature vegetables that have been protected will continue to grow or ripen.

When frost is imminent and protection is not possible or practicable, vegetables likely to be injured should be gathered and canned, dried, pickled, preserved or stored. Those that cannot be saved from exposure to freezing should, if possible, be gathered before thawing takes place. In the case of potatoes, especially sweet potatoes, all vines should be cut off at the surface of the ground after the occurrence of frost.

Tomatoes may be pulled up, roots and all, and hung tops downward in a dark place, preferably a cellar. When treated in this way the fruit will ripen nicely and slowly and will be available for table use for a long time after the plants have been removed from the soil. Fruit that is very immature should be removed from the vines and may be used for pickling or in other ways. If facilities for hanging the vines are lacking the tomatoes nearing full growth will ripen satisfactorily if wrapped separately in paper and stored in a dark place.

SUPERSTITION AND RELIGION.

Superstition is related to this life, religion to the next. Superstition is allied to fatality, religion to virtue. It is by the vivacity of earthly desires that we become superstitious. It is, on the contrary, by the sacrifice of these desires that we become religious.—Mme. de Staël.

The Change In Edwin LeRoy

By ETHEL HOLMES

Edwin LeRoy was not an especially spiritual man, though he was what may be termed a thoughtful one. He was not given to philosophic speculations, nor was he of a devotional nature. If he had any special intellectual predilection it was for science, though even in this he read only what was written for popular instruction. Circumstances had compelled him to assist himself on several occasions, and this had given him a reputation for being combative.

One day—rather, one moment—a great change came over him. He was walking on a road and met a girl. She looked at her; she looked at him. She lowered her eyes, but before she did so some vague internal announcement was made in both that they were mates. LeRoy turned and joined her. There was no conversational introduction. They walked on together.

The mating between Edwin LeRoy and Camilla Heald was a spiritual as well as a physical one. The two souls became one at the moment of meeting.

A year after their marriage Camilla died. LeRoy laid away his earthly partner with no great show of feeling. He did not weep at her grave. To him she had not been buried. She had not wholly departed from him. He was denied material communication with her, but there was a spiritual unity between them that could not be broken.

One day LeRoy was strolling about in his garden. He seemed to be talking to his flowers, but he was communing with the spirit of his wife. A man entered and hurried toward him.

"Sir," said the stranger, "I loved a woman whom, I have been told, you married. Though she did not love me, I loved and still love her. I am told that she is dead. I desire to visit her grave. Will you tell me where you have buried her?"

"I have not buried her."

The writer looked at LeRoy wonderingly.

"That receptacle," continued LeRoy, "that conveyance, that machine of flesh which is intended to hold a soul during a brief period of preparation for a superior existence, has been buried. You will find it in the churchyard a short distance up the road."

Having given this information, LeRoy turned again to his flowers. The fact that another had loved his wife did not seem either to interest or move him. This indication that he was so sure that his dead wife had belonged to him alone antagonized the visitor.

"Had I met Camilla," said the latter, "a few months before you found her the result might have been different."

"No," said LeRoy, "it would not."

"Why are you so sure of that?"

"Because Camilla was destined for a perfect union. She could never have accepted any other."

There was something irritating to the stranger in this, complacent view of LeRoy's with reference to the woman who had refused the one and mated with the other. While the widower remained unruffled, the discarded lover waxed warm with smoldering anger.

"Your love for her was human," he said. "You possessed her in the flesh. Now she is mine. Some day I will go to her."

"Many are going, but who shall meet in the infinite we cannot know while here."

"In the infinite there is no marriage. Camilla will be to me at least as much as she will be to you."

"She will not be to you what she has been to me."

This reference to the fact that the woman he had loved had been in the flesh possessed by his rival caused the stranger to lose his equanimity.

"You lie," he said.

LeRoy stooped to pick a flower.

"Did you hear me?" said the other angrily. "I say you lie."

"If you wish to quarrel with me," said LeRoy, rising and at the same time inhaling the perfume of the flower he had plucked, "you will have to select some other cause. There can be no quarrel in which the dead is concerned."

The man stood looking at LeRoy in a sort of confused wonder. This last word shamed him.

"Pardon," he said, "I have not been used to living in this world wherein you live. I am a mortal; you seem to have placed your foot on the threshold of the infinite."

"I have not placed it there; she is drawing me. She is the magnet, I the needle. Where she is there I point."

"I beg that you will excuse this unwarranted intrusion; it was not intended as such when I came here."

"Forgive my want of attention to your wish. Come; I will show you the grave."

The two walked in silence to the churchyard, and LeRoy led the way among the tombs, some of pure, fresh hewn marble, others crumbling and brown with age and stepped at one on which was inscribed, "The Former Casket of a Soul."

The stranger removed his hat and bent reverently beside the grave. LeRoy stood with folded arms and head covered.

"Do you not revere this spot?" asked the stranger.

"No."

"We differ. Down there lies the woman I loved."

LeRoy removed his hat and, raising his eyes to the blue heavens, said reverently:

"Out there is the woman I love."

Foe to Waste.

"Are you a tramp?" "No, mum, I'm a food conservator. Have you got any old food you don't want wasted?"

PITZER HOUSE FOR SALE

Owing to the death of the proprietor, John E. Pitzer, this property is now for sale. The Pitzer House was established as a temperance hotel over thirty years ago, and has been run successfully as such ever since. It has a large patronage and is most favorably known in almost every state in the union. The location of the Pitzer House is central, and most desirable on the north side of the Lincoln Highway. The main street of the borough of Gettysburg, less than three blocks from both depots.

This is an opportunity that someone can not afford to miss.

Price $12,000, half cash at time of sale, balance can remain under first mortgage, at 4½ per cent, per annum.

For particulars address or call upon Dr. or Mrs. Rose Pitzer Stevenson Pitzer House, Gettysburg, Pa.

Modern Magic.

The fairy's wand which turned a ragged gown into a dress fit for a princess, and a pumpkin into a coach, is not altogether a myth. The cheerful disposition which sees everything at its best, rather than its worst, makes as wonderful transformations. The magic of cheerfulness is still at work.—Exchange.

Hard to See Through.

Bobbie's father was trying to raise incubator chickens, and one day as the little fellow was watching a chicken breaking its way through the shell, Bobby remarked: "I see how he gets out, all right, but I can't see how he got in."

What One Needs.

"Tis a good old world to live in, so you need yourself a house; to love in, so you need a spouse; to go in, so you need a car or horse; to know in, so you need a college course; to read in, so you need some books; to shine in, so you need good clothes and looks.—Exchange.

It Wasn't His Fault.

One youngster in school had dallied a severe kick in the stomach to another lad. When taken to task as to why he had struck his playmate there, he said: "I didn't mean to hit him there, but he turned around just in time."

END FOOT MISERY AND TORTURE FOREVER

Don't fool with makeshifts. Get rid of the trouble at once and be happy.

Obtain a small jar of Dash Foot Balm on your way home to-night. Every good druggist has it, and give your poor, tired, aching, puffed up, perspiring feet a chance to get well.

You simply apply a little of this almost magical balm, first bathing them off with a little warm water and drying. You will be at once surprised and delighted to find how easy and comfortable you feel. No matter how hard the day's work or how long you may be compelled to stand at bench or counter, real foot comfort is yours at last.

Just as soon as Dash Foot Balm touches those sore, inflamed, aching feet, you will literally jump for joy. Shoes never hurt or seem tight. Every druggist in the country sells Dash Foot Balm, in 25 cents jars, on the money back if dissatisfied plan. People's Drug Store can supply you.
